HUNTER
EMERGING
ART PRIZE 2022-2023

ENTRY GUIDE

PROUDLY PRESENTED BY NEWCASTLE ART SPACE

Newcastle Art Space (then known as Newcastle Community Arts Centre) founded the Newcastle Emerging Art Prize as part of its mission to nurture the creative and professional development of local artists.

In its 20+ year history, the prize has provided a springboard for hundreds of artists launching their careers in the arts.

We relaunched the prize in 2021 with an expanded offering and a change of name. The new Hunter Emerging Art Prize attracted a record number of entries, representing more diverse artists and practices, and attracting an opening night crowd of more than 500.

With great excitement and heartfelt thanks to our sponsors, judges and supporters, we offer the Hunter Emerging Art Prize again in 2022-2023, and wish all entrants the very best.

ABOUT

HUNTER EMERGING ART PRIZE IS A PLATFORM FOR ARTISTS SEEKING TO LAUNCH THEIR CAREERS AND CONTRIBUTE TO CULTURE IN OUR REGION AND BEYOND.

Previously known as the Newcastle Emerging Art Prize, the award has a proud 20-year history.

We changed the name in 2021 to reflect a broadened scope. New Youth and Experimental sections have been added, and the guidelines now clearly encourage entries from the whole Hunter Region.

The prize is open to emerging artists living in the local government areas of Cessnock, Dungog, Lake Macquarie, MidCoast, Maitland, Muswellbrook, Newcastle, Port Stephens, Singleton, and Upper Hunter.

The Experimental section has been added in partnership with our long-time collaborators, Octapod, and we are excited to embrace new artforms and experimental, multi-disciplinary approaches.

The Youth Prize is a special award made possible with support from the Squires family, in recognition of the late Jody Robinson's phenomenal contribution to young artists and art education in the Hunter.

Another recent change is the shift to an initial online entry process. Entries are now to be made online by submitting images and a statement about your work. Only finalists are required to deliver their actual works to Newcastle Art Space Gallery for final judging and exhibition.

With the shift to online entry, we are supporting emerging artists to make their strongest possible submission. Videos and a 'how to' guide for photographing your works are available on the NAS website a resource for all artists to use.

THE JUDGING PROCESS

HELPFUL ADVICE FROM THE JUDGES

The judges appreciate that emerging artists are not experienced in entering art prizes or even publicly exhibiting their work, so offer some helpful hints for your consideration:

- Your work will be judged in a competitive field. Judges will consider your work in terms of how it holds its own in this field and how accomplished and/or innovative you have been in your use of materials and techniques, together with elements of risk taking and/or pushing the boundaries of practice.
- Work towards resolution in your artwork and present it as professionally as you can afford. If the work's integrity and presence depend on a particular installation, specify it. This may not always be achievable in our gallery, but give it a go! The special arrangement of an artwork is so important and adds (or detracts) from its meaning for the viewer.
- Give your work the best chance of being selected by having a clear artists statement and quality photography.
- Consider your artist statement and ensure it reflects and enhances the meaning of the artwork. The judges will read the artists statements when considering the entries.

HOW IT WORKS

- Finalists works will be hung in the Newcastle Art Space Gallery for the final judging.
- The Judging Panel will choose the Section Winners, Youth Prize Winner and the Overall Prize winner.
- The decisions during the judging process are final and no correspondence or appeal will be entered into or considered.
- Finalists will be announced on Newcastle Art Space's social media channels on Friday 10 March 2023.
- The Section Winners, Youth Prize winner and the Overall Prize winner will be announced at the Hunter Emerging Art Prize Opening Night, Saturday 25 February 2023.
- The People's Choice Award will be based on votes received throughout exhibition from gallery visitors and online, and will be announced at the end of the exhibition.
